I allowed one of those "someone answered a question about you" applications to access my information so that I could see the questions and answers that people have said about me. I found out there were a lot of mean answers stated about me by others. It ruined my morning, but I learned my lesson on looking into these things... Don't look into them! So no more for me. And to you not-nice answerers, go jump off a cliff! Why are you my "friend" anyway?
