This is for you, my special friend,
a poem from myself--
A message that I've longed to share, a feeling few have felt.

For no one has ever freed me
my insecurities.
You've shown me that I'm not alone.
You're all I'd like to be.

Your voice is like a soothing song
of memories long past-- A song that beams of childhood dreams with happiness that last--

Dreams that thrilled me with promises, a future I might have-- A future filled with such delight
that I'd never be sad.

But, as I grew, those dreams soon died and the darkness came in.
The light I had was lost in youth,
and despair dwelt within.

Through tear-worn eyes, I kept the search to find someone who knew
The yearning that I felt inside--
Not knowing what to do.

But, like a gift, you came along and eased me of my fears.
This poem is for you, my friend,
to last you all your years.
